8:30 – 9:30 a.m. - Storm Debris Guidance by Casey Lamensky, DNR

Guidance on operating temporary staging locations, transportation, processing and end disposal of storm debris after a natural disaster in accordance with Wisconsin Solid Waste Rules.

9:30 – 10:30 a.m. – Open Discussion and Questions

Donna Haugom – Director of Jefferson County Emergency Management who will be in attendance can explain some of the FEMA requirements and expectations.

Michelle Staff – DNR Water Regulations & Zoning Specialist will also be in attendance and can share some of the events she has inspected and answer questions on water regulations.

The guidance is an informational guide for local towns, cities and villages. The DNR guide is in accordance with the Wisconsin Solid Waste Rules which closely follow FEMA rules and regulations. We all remember the flooding of 2008, but what can we do to improve our management of storm debris for future events such as tornadoes, ice storms, straight-line winds and hopefully not a another 2008 flood. In most storm debris events DNR will be on site first. If it becomes a FEMA event, that declaration could be weeks away, so following the DNR Solid Waste Rules is the first step in the right direction for cleanup recovery.
