A discussion with MCHA board members was had during today's conference call. Clearview Financial Director, Bill Wiley, explained the write-off/non-collectibles process, noting that write-offs will be done two times a year.

5. QUARTERLY FINANCIAL REPORT:

Wiley updated the group on the 2014 Clearview audit. He explained that $896,254 was written off in 2014 of which some of the accounts may have went a few years. The balance of the $1.5 million that was stated in the Johnson & Block full accrual analysis was what made up the allowance for doubtful accounts. Clearview started the year with $602,000 in this account and it is now down to $475,000. $129,000 has been written off so far in 2015 with another round at the end of the year.

Wiley explained that the bad debt expense procedure has been revised and that it is monitored and adjusted monthly. The allowance account estimate is based on a percentage of yearly revenue and broken down by aging receivables timeframes and payer sources. This percentage may be revised up or down depending on how many write offs are done over the course of the upcoming months / year.

Wiley gave an update on the 2015 MCHA Income Statement as of September 30. MCHA is executing their budget very closely to what was planned. One item he noted was that in October a $1,000,000 revenue was posted to reverse out that liability posted from the previous year for the CBIC Medicaid recoupment.

It was requested that Wiley provide the following 2015 write off amount to the group at the February 2016 meeting.
